Dedication

Marion Bothwell, a lady of the Methodist Church and of the community, was a woman who, realizing the value of education, made it possible for McKendree to take one of the greatest progressive strides in its long history. Miss Bothwell, who passed away in October of 1967, left the largest bequest ever received by McKendree, and in doing so made available the funds necessary to completely finance the construction and maintenance of the soon-to-be realized, and immeasurably necessary Bothwell Chapel on the McKendree campus.

Because of her concern for Christian education and her unselfish contribution toward its furtherance, we dedicate the 1968 McKendrean in memory of her.

CAMPUS LIFE

(PRIDE IN THE PAST; FAITH IN THE FUTURE)

Where there is food, there are frat men

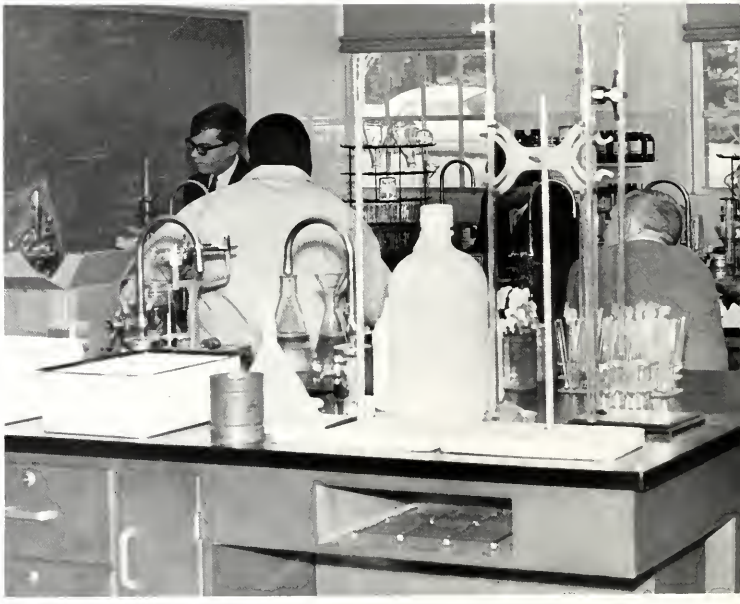
Student life at McKendree is composed of as many elements as there are personalities . . . from the fraternity cook-outs to the relatively sedate lounge of the girls' residence, from the dorm rooms, to the card games, passes an endless variety of activity which proves again that the campus is a microcosm of life after all.

The Deneen Campus Center is the revolving hub of campus social life. Within these walls, pulses the freer life, the post exam crowd, and the pool players, although people have been known to study there, too. The juke box, the ping pong tables, and the snack bar add to the atmosphere already blue with smoke.

The books and the deck of cards – a study in contrast

The upper lounge—best place on earth to kill time before the next class

Campus life moves steadily from the Center to the classroom. The books in the union work their way to the laboratory with all the regularity of a fine timepiece, accompanied—usually by their students. Somehow, most people manage to figure out the uses of all the glass and metal on the lab tables in the well-stocked science building.



From the classroom the wheel of student life spins slowly to the library. Here we find the lower mazes of the stacks, the magazines which are not always there when we need them, and the old books crowded on the austere metal shelves. The Benson Wood Library building, however, will soon be replaced by the Holman Library, which will adequately accommodate our rapidly growing student body.

City officials always have all the answers except when we need them.

Outside the library, student interests may turn to local politics—the parking sticker question is still unresolved—or they may weave on to food. Although I.D. cards are no longer checked at the cafeteria door, the food is still plentiful.

Students learn more things about Alexandrea in the town newspaper than they learn on campus — and sometimes the shock is staggering. Did you know, for example, that Dean Manuel was passing out hot lollipops for Christmas?

It's a long walk from the Center to the classrooms, but in the autumn the time is pleasurably spent. This year was probably the last during which the walk from south to north campus was open country — the coming library will take up the empty space.

Sooner or later in the cycle of campus life, we have to let off a little steam. So maybe we dress up in something comfortable, take a little smoke, and go for an innocent joy ride.

Or it could be a matter of face painting... ah, come on now! Girls do it all the time!

The cafeteria again — overcrowded, poorly equipped, but gone now, replaced by the new dining hall

Halloween at McKendree calls for the traditional witch-doctors mask.

The McKendree athletic program and pledge program often coincide — the "chicken walk" may be a valuable asset to the intramural basketball team.

Girls' tennis this year was so bad that the coach couldn't even bear to look

There comes a time in every student's life when the destructive urge finally boils to the surface

More civilized students may take out their aggressions and/or tensions on the fall festivals and their attendant dart games.

The Dean gets into the "swing" of student life by trying his hand at roasting weenies.

Finally, the handbooks of student life at McKendree

Pledging activities took a large slice from the circle of McK student life. This year even the girls gave their pledges a rough time with early-morning line-ups in the cold. These ladies pursue their jumping-jacks with enthusiasm, possibly to whittle inches from their waists, or maybe — maybe — they are waving to airplanes?

What do you mean, "Did I steal the Dean's bicycle???"

Life in one of the men's residences has its share of joy and terror. But the friendships which develop there are very apt to continue throughout adult life, despite water fights and aerosol shaving foam.

McK life—books, sleep, the upper lounge, contraband cokes

Academics at McK—a curious combination of student and professor, of office and classroom, of dormitory and student union, of minds at work and asleep—an alternating current of activity which somehow permeates the campus' restless atmosphere and reminds that this, after all, is our purpose

The McK student is one who thinks sometimes the best cure for life's problems.

Cramming for exams may not be the best form of studying, but it has saved occasional grades from the oblivion of failure. A few McK students are not immune to the cramming disease, which may strike any time, anywhere, as long as the student has been infected with mild paranoia right before an exam.

McK gym classes build strong bodies for Uncle Sam.

Benson Wood Library now has a new policy -- you can pay over-due fines only if you show your I.D. card.

Has anyone ever solved the age-old problem of how on earth do you eat the last bite of hot dog?

McK athletics has produced a wide variety of results. Intramural sports give a brief relief from the academic grind

Water-play is another form of respite.

Athletics on campus give the student a chance to develop his body as well as his mind—another facet of the McK aim to develop the entire individual. A healthy mind is perhaps a function of a healthy body

Chris Farrell relaxes after a tiring day as student director of intramural sports.

The campus center snack bar is the favored retreat. It also provides gallons of coffee for the constant campus center conversation.

The informal lounge, or student union, is the perfect place to dump books, drink coffee or coke, or make last-minute lunch-time homework corrections. Here the campus heart beats, the plans are hatched, the action begins.

Barnett Hall, where boys meet girls.

It's great to see proper form on the tennis court.

It is the pride of McK that we can progress at our present rate and still have an adequate academic routine

McK's heart beats, too, in the isolated areas of the library, where the atmosphere is cool and quiet—far from the hot bustle of the dormitories or the electric potential of the campus center

View the march of progress, as McK organization men prepare to move into the new men's dormitory!

A women's residence is a strange and wonderful thing, where thoughts can range from lack of closet space to study. Barnett Hall has its share of perplexities, and its share of grins.

Working at the wine-press these days is sure messy work

McK coeds somehow find time in their schedules for baby-sitting as well as studying. A large percentage of married students in the student body provides many opportunities for girls to earn money

These aren't as good as the candy apples Mommy made.

Men make themselves comfortable on Deneen Center furniture.

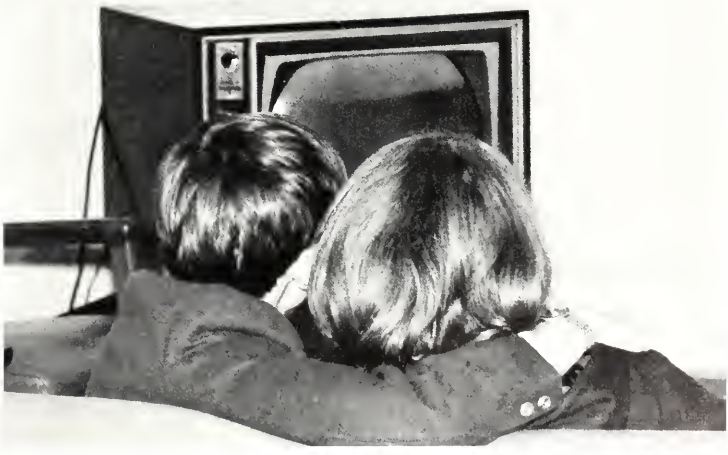
Our great Bearcats score again!

This is, in a sense, the face of McKendree. Eager, bright, a bit excited, a trifle anxious, but mostly hopeful, young, and forward-looking.

McK students are people, both male and female. They meet, like each other, and sometimes fall in love. It is implicit in the circle of McK student life that men and women will be together. It is obvious in front of Barnett Hall at closing hours.

The McK Review is the center of the school's political and communication system. Besides the standard announcements and news releases, contained in the Review are stimulating editorials, and letters which are sometimes thought provoking and often enraging. Here is the market-place of information in which everyone participates and samples.

The upper or formal lounge at the Deneen Center is a calm area in which to play records, or to watch color TV, or to study, or to sit and talk.



Art Work of Japanese Children

Yes, Clarence, you really do have a fly on your nose.

When even your best friend won't tell you, it comes time for your roommate to take action. McK students always make an effort to be neat and clean, and they expect their fellow students to behave accordingly. Results of failure to conform are illustrated here.

Mr. Garcia is the first coach in McK history to shout instructions in flawless Spanish.

Yes, Virginia, and after ballet class, everyone goes out to the field and plays with the horseshoes

Want to know the reason for the big grin? Dr. Voigt secretly hates squirrels!

McK has been accepted into the Big 10 of basketball? Are you kidding me?

WHO'S WHO

Each year certain students meeting certain requirements are nominated for the Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities. This is to explain how these students, on our campus, become part of this publication.

Senior students who meet the criteria for nomination are screened by the Registrar and the faculty. A student advisory ballot is taken and the Faculty Committee on Student Life makes the final decision.

The qualities considered in prospective nominees are those suggested by the editors of Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities: the student's excellence and sincerity in scholarship; his leadership and participation in extracurricular and academic activities; his citizenship and service to the school; and his promise of future usefulness to business and society.

You McKendreans are witnessing the renaissance of this College—six new buildings on the campus, the library near completion, and a magnificent bequest for a Chapel-Auditorium.

All of this is dramatic and exciting. We rejoice in it. However, it is not the main thing, but the means to a far larger purpose.

The principal objects of all of this development is what happens to you. Our major concern is you students who will have the responsibility to live through the next generation. All of these physical facilities have meaning only insofar as they assist you in carrying out your life's work creatively, honorably, and usefully.

EDWIN E. VOIGT, President t
B.S., A.M., Northwestern University

Ph.D., Yale University

It is important for all who seek after knowledge to realize three important facts about education. First, the individual who is honestly seeking an education must assume the responsibility for the discipline and guidance of his own academic life. Second, the individual needs to realize that a teacher only constructs a framework upon which the student may build further study. Only a person who has started to build upon this framework can say that he has begun to master his subject. Third, one must see education as a process of walking towards an ever broadening horizon of knowledge—a walk which should not cease after the possession of a degree. I sincerely hope that more students will develop the passion to become true seekers of knowledge.

EMERIAL L. OWEN, JR., Academic Dean
A.B., Summa Cum Laude, McKendree College
Ed.M., Ph.D., St. Louis University

Because in the autumn of 1964, 71 freshman and I came to McKendree, I consider myself a member of the Class of '68. The past four years, this class has seen many advances such as the addition of six—almost seven new buildings to the campus; an increase in the College's annual student scholarship and grant in aid program from $31,263.75 to $116,600.00; and the full implementation of our student activities program.

The College will have even greater achievements in the next few years. There will be additional new buildings; the student body will double in size; the College will become known everywhere for its excellence in the Liberal Arts.

But perhaps even more important, many, many more graduates of this institution will achieve excellence in their chosen fields as educators, doctors, politicians, artists— —. This will reflect the true worth of McKendree and become part of its lasting heritage.

VERNON SNEAD, Business Manager
B.S. Ed., Southern Illinois University
M.S.Ed., Indiana University

We are witnessing one of the most exciting growth years in McKendree's 140 years of history. It is a year marked by the largest single gift, the largest bequest, the largest enrollment, the greatest extent of the campus—and the largest budget.

The real and enduring history of a College, however, is written in lives that are challenged, inspired and prepared for worthy living and effective serving. Buildings and dollars derive their importance from their contribution to that high end.

Let McKendree's upcoming "Decade of Progress" be marked by McKendreans who will be visible expressions of our "Pride in the past and our faith in the future."

CLYDE R. FUNKHOUSER, Vice President of Development
A.B., Magna Cum Laude, McKendree College
D.D., McKendree College

We have recently expanded opportunity for students to be more involved in their own education here at McKendree. The Campus Center Program Board and Student Congress, the social societies and Inter-Society Council have all made significant strides through the hard work and good will of students, faculty and staff working together.

As we know, our society set up colleges for the simple reason that some people know more than others. This does not presume a process as much as a relationship, and McKendree has always tried to make the relationship between teacher and taught a warm, fruitful one. But today, with the help of interested students, we are finding ways to expand learning relationships outside the classroom which promise significant educational results for our academic community.

Language and Literature

"Language is the memory of the human race. It is as a thread or nerve of life running through all the ages, connecting them into one common, prolonged, and advancing existence." (William Smith)

It is through the process of stressing exactness; encouraging imagination; sharpening the appreciation of thought content; increasing the powers of independent thinking; and mastering of the media of communication that the Language and Literature Department strives to aid the student in uncovering "the thread . . . running through all ages" and thus better understand the true unity of humanity."

Social Science

The objectives of the Division of Social Science are: the acquisition of needed knowledge and skills to prepare students for graduate studies or public school teaching; the stimulation of personal and social responsibility; generation of a spirit of racial and international understanding; and the promotion of a democratic philosophy of life rooted in the Judeo-Christian tradition.

Special attention is given to the development of ethical patterns of thought and practice, with emphasis on both word and intellectual honesty in the classroom, on the campus, and in the community at large.

Science and Mathematics

Paul A. Weiss has said, "Science's task is to serve man by mastering nature, and not to become man's master. In serving man, science must close ranks with other servants of humanity, the creative arts, philosophy, religion, and all others striving for a new integrated humanism. Science, which has helped to de-throne man from the self-appropriated station as the center of the universe can help him now grow in his rightful stature."

It is in the light of this philosophy that the department of Science and Mathematics strives to acquaint students with the scientific attitude and with scientific and logical methods as applied to the natural sciences and mathematics; and to prepare students specializing in the division for teaching, research, or industrial work in the natural sciences and mathematics.

Teacher Preparation

The teacher education program of McKendree College proposes to accomplish the following objectives:

To help the prospective teacher discover as fully as possible the vocation of teaching.

To encourage the student in developing a personal philosophy of education.

To supply opportunities for the use of a variety of teaching techniques.

To familiarize the student with current codes of professional ethics.

To provide an introduction to the professional literature.

To create an experimental attitude toward teaching.

To develop competence in the subject areas taught.

To stimulate the desire for continuous growth through the use of professional media.

To encourage the prospective teacher to become a sensitive and participating member of the local, national, and world community.

Fine Arts

"Art is the desire of a man to express himself, to record the reaction of his personality to the world he lives in." (Amy Lowell)

There is an ever increasing recognition that a knowledge of the fine arts and its literature is a vital part of a liberal education. It is the purpose of the Division of Fine Arts, therefore, to serve those who wish to make an intensive study of music and art so that they may become men and women of high ideals and usefulness as artists and teachers. The Division of Fine Arts attempts not only to develop those professionally interested in music and art, but also to contribute to the general education in the life of every student at McKendree.

Casual discussion with instructors is common at McK

Editor's Page

We have spent one quarter of our life expectancy preparing to meet the world, and to find our proper place in it as useful and outstanding citizens. Here at McKendree we have been guided in various ways to realize our potential in order to accomplish our projected goals. We never really understand just what we are capable of doing until we accept the challenge that seems ultimately out of our reach. But, with a lot of faith, desire and confidence we soon come to realize that potential which we possess.

I would like to extend my greatest appreciation to the McKendrian staff as a very cooperative and efficient group. Bob Bridges was outstanding and did far more than what was expected of him. Mr. Norton was especially helpful in giving me confidence when the task seemed impossible. Last of all I would like to thank you, McKendree College, for giving me the opportunity to make my life more meaningful.
